Ahimsa House

www.ahimsahouse.org

In families affected by domestic violence, pets are also at risk. Abusers threaten, injure, and kill family pets to victimize others in the home. Despite this, most domestic violence shelters are unable to allow pets to accompany their owners to safety. Nearly 50% of individuals delay escaping abuse because of concern for the well-being of their pets. Ahimsa means "nonviolence" in Sanskrit. Subsequently, Ahimsa House is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization dedicated to addressing the links between domestic violence and animal abuse. Anywhere in Georgia and at no charge, Ahimsa House provides emergency pet safe housing, veterinary care, pet-related safety planning, legal advocacy, a 24-hour crisis line, outreach programs, and other services to help human and animal victims of domestic violence reach safety together. Ahimsa House serves all victims of domestic violence regardless of sex, race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, age, religion, or immigration status

Our Mission is to improve the health of and decrease disparities among diverse and underserved populations in Atlanta. The UHI forges vital university and community partnerships in health care, education, and community planning, with all partners working to change the trajectory for the children, youth, and families of metropolitan Atlanta and the state of Georgia. Our work is first and foremost responsive to community challenges and strengths, and we pursue projects, programs, and partnerships on an ongoing basis. Recognizing the significance of the social determinants of health for impacting wellbeing and working through all levels of a socio-ecological model, the work of UHI is inherently diverse, interdisciplinary, and collaborative. UHI's strategy for achieving its mission is based on the National Institutes of Health Center of Excellence model and include four key overlapping areas of focus: community programs, community engaged learning, training of health professionals, and research. Check out our work for more details on our projects within these areas. Urban health issues with which UHI has engaged thus far and continue to drive our efforts are as follows: food access and security, transportation, access to health and wellness screenings and resources, obesity, pre-term birth, rolling suitcases for homeless women and children, smoking prevention. Key Health Areas: By addressing upstream determinants of health, UHI seeks to affect change in relation to the following Health Areas: Maternal and Child Health, Cancer, Obesity and Diabetes, and Mental Health as is relates to the first three areas.

HERCULES: Health and Exposome Research Center

www.emoryhercules.com

In collaboration with GeorgiaTech, the HERCULES: Health and Exposome Research Center is one of twenty-one Environmental Health Sciences Core Centers funded by the National Institutes of Environmental Health Sciences. Led by Dr. Gary Miller (Center Director) and Dr. Paige Tolbert (Deputy Director), the Center is designed to enhance environmental health sciences research on campus by focusing on innovation. The environment, broadly defined, plays a major role in health and disease, but has been underrepresented in the research community. The Center operates under the theme of the exposome, which provides a potential vehicle to better incorporate the environmental component into the study of disease and health. HERCULES provides key infrastructure and expertise to develop and refine new tools and technologies. Key among these are the Integrated Health Sciences Facility Core and the Systems Biology Core which can develop the needed tools to assess the exposome. The former will help generate exposure data, improve metabolomic approaches, and facilitate clinical studies, while the latter will help synthesize the data into comprehensive computational models. Promoting exposome-related research has the potential to stimulate discovery, promote collaboration, and enhance communication. The Center works to foster an intellectual climate that encourages innovation and collaboration in order to pursue key challenges in environmental health sciences.

PAHL does this by building community gardens, teaching youth to garden, increasing access to healthy food through a produce market and Senior Produce delivery program, annual 5K race, and community events with fitness demos, neighborhood walks, hosting quarterly community forums, food documentary screenings, and healthy cooking classes. PAHL partners with a variety of organizations and agencies. Milestones include the 1st annual FFAST 5K event in 2013 (a first in Belvedere and one of 3 such events in South DeKalb), serving over 70 youth through the Garden for All program, and surpassing our goal of 100 attendees at the Community Forum held in March 2014 (150 attended).

Rollins Earn And Learn (REAL) Program

sph.emory.edu/current_students/REAL/index.html

Rollins Earn And Learn is a program that offers eligible full-time MPH and MSPH students valuable opportunities to earn while they learn. The program provides funding for full-time master's level public health graduate students to support their academic interests with applied public health experiences in federal, state, county and other government agencies, as well as Emory University, Emory Healthcare, Emory-affiliated programs, for-profit and nonprofit organizations throughout Atlanta. This not a need-based financial aid program, but is instead funded by the Rollins School of Public Health and by the approved supervising organizations. Rollins Earn And Learn Awards are not applied directly to tuition; the funds must be earned through authorized employment. This program will allow RSPH to continue its tradition of helping approximately 400 Rollins students find meaningful public health work opportunities. These integral experiences may fulfill practicum requirements, lead to thesis opportunities, and are win-win opportunities for all involved: the students, Rollins, partner agencies and the communities they serve.

Rotary Club of Buckhead Division: District 6900 Global Grant Scholarship Program

www.buckheadrotary.com/

Global grants can fund these activities: Humanitarian projects, Scholarships for graduate-level academic studies, Vocational training teams, which are groups of professionals who travel abroad either to teach local professionals about a particular field or to learn more about their own How to use them: A key feature of global grants is partnership, between the district or club where the activity is carried out and a district or club in another country. Both sponsors must be qualified before they can submit an application.

To be successful, your application must: Be sustainable and include plans for long-term success after the global grant funds have been spent; Include measurable goals; Align with one of our areas of focus; Respond to real community needs; Actively involve Rotarians and community members; Meet the eligibility requirements in the grants terms and conditions

Applications are accepted throughout the year and reviewed as they are received.

How they're funded: The minimum budget for a global grant activity is $30,000. The Foundation's World Fund provides a minimum of $15,000 and maximum of $200,000. Clubs and districts contribute District Designated Funds (DDF) and/or cash contributions that the World Fund matches. DDF is matched at 100% and cash is matched at 50%.

The Peace Corps

www.peacecorps.gov/

The Peace Corps has been a leader in international development and citizen diplomacy for more than 50 years across more than 139 countries. In an increasingly interdependent world, we tackle challenges that know no borders—such as climate change, pandemic disease, food security, and gender equality and empowerment. We are offering the opportunity to make a difference in the world and in yourself by serving 27 months in one of our host countries. We provide training in language, culture, and project development, so that you may integrate into a community and facilitate projects that meet their needs. Other tangible benefits include student loan deferment, grad school scholarships, non-competitive status for federal jobs, living allowance, paid travel, medical coverage, 48 vacation days, and $7400 for readjustment. Experience as a Peace Corps Volunteer working in public health is valued by many organizations, including the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the U.S. Agency for International Development, the U.S. Public Health Service, and many private companies and nongovernmental organizations seeking individuals with unique skills. The Rwanda Zambia HIV Research Group

www.rzhr.org/

The Rwanda Zambia HIV Research Group was established by Dr. Susan Allen (Emory University School of Medicine, Department of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine) first in Rwanda, in 1985 at the very first recognition of the HIV epidemic in Africa. The original research was focused on the epidemiology, natural history, and manifestations of HIV infection in African men and women. Building on previous work, this grew to include collaborative studies of the virologic, immunologic, and immunogenetic correlates of transmission from men to women and women to men. In addition to the observational studies, RZHRG pioneered couples' voluntary HIV counseling and testing (CVCT) as a public health prevention strategy. While couples represent the largest risk group in Africa (60% of new HIV infections are acquired from a spouse), less than one percent of cohabiting couples have been tested together. After receiving joint counseling and testing with counselor-facilitated disclosure of HIV results, the transmission rate of HIV within couples is reduced by two-thirds. Our research centers in Rwanda and Zambia now serve as Centers of Excellence, and RZHRG has provided CVCT technical assistance to twenty countries. Our ongoing studies focus on prevention of heterosexual transmission and unplanned pregnancies in couples. This initiative has led to the development of integrated couples' family planning counseling and couples' HIV counseling, with specific training in provision of long-acting reversible contraceptive methods, for example the intrauterine device and implant. RZHRG is also involved in biomedical interventions, including HIV vaccine trials. RZHRG is currently funded by the International AIDS Vaccine Initiative; the U.S. National Institutes of Health; the U.K. Department for International Development; and the Canadian Department of Foreign Affairs, Trade, and Development.
